Savannah Photographer to Display “Farm Team: A Season in the Minors” at Grayson Stadium

SAVANNAH, Ga. – A photo exhibit titled “Farm Team: A Season in the Minors” will be displayed in the concourse at Historic Grayson Stadium throughout the 2005 season. The exhibit, which debuts with a reception on April 29, is the work of local photographer and baseball fan Joseph C. Gamble.

Gamble spent much of the 2004 season living among the players, coaches and staff, compiling a visual diary of the 100th anniversary of professional baseball in Savannah. His black and white images portray a side of minor league ball that fans rarely witness.

“I wanted my photographs to evoke the timelessness of baseball, but more than anything I wanted to show what minor league baseball is really like,” he said. “I also wanted to memorialize Savannah’s love affair with the game and illustrate the importance of minor league baseball to the city.”

Limited edition collections of 20 prints will be available to the public after opening day. For more information on the project, visit: www.aseasonintheminors.com or contact Joseph C. Gamble at 912-441-5172.
